

What is the Chemical Industry Council of California?

The Chemical Industry Council of California (CICC) is a voluntary trade association comprised of large and small chemical manufacturers, distributors and allied businesses throughout California representing 105 facilities, including:

- Forty three (43) manufacturing plants,
- Five (5) research laboratories,
- Sixty seven (67) sales, service and distribution centers.

CICC's California members account for annual sales in excess of $3 billion; and directly employ more than 5700 workers with combined annual payroll $283 million. An additional 11,000 indirect jobs are created by CICC member companies with a combined annual payroll of some $360 million.

CICC strives to:

- Alert member companies regarding public attitudes and governmental intent in matters affecting the industry;
- Provide a forum for member discussion and review of public policy issues important to the industry;
- Provide timely and reliable information regarding the industry to members of the Governor, State Legislature, and various state agencies
- Respond to the public and media need for reliable and useful information about the chemical industry in California;
- Speak out on behalf of the industry regarding the importance of chemicals to the quality of life and the state's economy;
- Promote a coordinated chemical industry response on public policy issues and effective participation during the development of legislative and regulatory measures related to chemicals and science policy.
